

Through gifts from people like you, who love great literature and value cultural exchange, we're able to find, translate, and publish the finest books from around the world—books that would otherwise be lost to us. We're also able to place these books in as many hands as possible, host free programs and events, run the Three Percent website, curate the Best Translated Book Awards, educate a new generation of literary translators, and much more.

I support the mission of Open Letter with this gift of:
